

Gaelic Storm, I Thought I Knew You

Surfin' though the pages of my mind,
I find picture of you,
You were young and I was too,
"I do" you said, and I beleived you

Singing songs and dancing in the street, the beat I don't remeber, A barking dog, a velvet chain, the rain was cold but you were colder

I thought I knew you
I thought I knew you
I thought I knew what you're about I doubt If I ever knew you

We took the ferry late at night, first light discovered us together we agreed that paradise was nice, but couldn't last forever

Bright eyed and busy tailed I failed to see what everyone else saw, moss growing on the roof
the truth was getting hard to swallow

Chorus

For every left there is a right, for every day there is a night, a moon, a sun, a smoking gun, a tear, an eye, hello, goodbye
For every hand there is a glove, for every hate there is a love Heaven, earth, a death, a birth, a hat, ahead, a hunger....

Chorus

Tomorrow never comes they say, but hey you know I don't beleive them I close my eyes and drift away today has gone, I'm still standing I'm still standing
I'm still standing, oh!
