

Gay Dad, Dateline

I started feeling blue back in 1972
barefoot in the street I had patches on my jeans and high up in the hills they were nodding out on pills and booze a odawful sad affair?
and the lights were there to thrill you my oh my
we live from time to time and day by day
it the modern way
look at me I speeding through self obsessive
just like you
we can smile
oh yeah we can smile 1984
and school was out for summer I was hot for teacher well you should have seen our double feature started feeling fine in the winter of 1989
such an underrated year but it gone gone gone
my oh my
and day to day
it the only way I know
a self obsessive just like you we can dance
we can dance the days away 1999
it the end of modern time there panic in your eyes so if you can get muscles then you better get yourself a tan and be a real man cos the heroes that you worshipped are all gone gone gone
my oh my
self obsessed I just like you
we can dance
we can dance the night away
