

George, Fortunate Smile

On silent summer evenings, a certain sunlight in her eyes
I walk through the pavement of life again

I've got a warm feeling
I can't escape
It could last forever into our own world where everyone sleeps and silence is deeper than water I love her like no other

Oh I, I never can tell
just how much I need to recite
I never can tell, just how hard it is to write down

But I'll pray every day for a glimpse of your fortunate smile
And I'll pray every day for a glimpse of your fortunate smile

A timeless place, I hope to reside
A beautiful life, is here for a time
I never felt like this I would call upon the heavens for your innocent words your beautiful ways, your heavenly presence

Oh I, I never can tell
just how much I need to recite
I never can tell, just how hard it is to write down

But I'll pray every day for a glimpse of your fortunate smile
And I'll pray every day for a glimpse of your fortunate smile

And now and then, we'll go down to the park
You never know what you might find there after dark
'Cause heaven, is right there in your eyes, your eyes, your eyes

But I'll pray every day for a glimpse of your fortunate smile
And I'll pray every day for a glimpse of your fortunate smile

Heaven is right there in your eyes (repeat to end)