

George Jones, Come sundown

I heard the front door closing softly as I weaken from my sleep
With the last touch of her lips Lord ill