

George Jones, In the garden

I come to the garden alone while the dew is still on the roses
And the voice I hear falling on my ear