

George Jones, Over something good

Your eyes could light the world tonight that's just how much they glow
Your face could give your heart