

George Strait, A Heart Like Hers

Every time that someone walks in
She turns around to see if it's him
She checks her watch by the clock
I can't count the times he's stood her up
And one's too much

[Chorus:]

How could anybody break a heart like hers
I can't stand to watch her hurt
I would gladly take her place
If she'd just love me the way
He must not know what it's worth
I don't understand how anyone
Could break a heart like hers

She keep saying he'll change someday
He wasn't always this way
She thinks he hung the moon and stars
But all he's done is string her along like this
It don't make sense

[Chorus]

How could anybody break
A heart like hers
