

Glitter Kicks, New Cup Or A Refill

I'm gonna find the thickest skin and put it on I'm gonna find the hardest shell and crawl inside it.
Then all your sticks and stones will bounce right off
And all your words will never hurt me like they do.
Break my bones, i don't care
But when you hurt with the words thats not fair I'm gonna find the biggest rock and crawl beneath and maybe then I'll finally get some relief from the sharpened words the thoughts that shouldn't make it to the mouth and the misdirected anger you let out Break my bones, I don't care
but when you hurt with the words, thats not fair
Why don't you just break my bones
So I won't emasculate you when I don't laugh at your jokes
Why don't you just break my bones
So in your misery you won't have to be alone
Break my bones I don't care
But when you hurt with the words that's not fair