

Goapele, Too Much The Same

<verse 1>
seeking a summertime love just kick it on the low you know with a vibe and flow but we didn't know what the light of day would show or if it was meant to grow how we'd feel within what we (?)

and why you kept that distance were your emotions (?)
i was afraid of what i was feelin' afraid that you'd take my heart and go steal it
my pride my soul
now i know

<chorus>
cuz we were too much the same
i didn't know
who to blame
cuz i didn't wanna change

we were too much the same
i didn't know
cuz you weren't gonna change

<verse 2>
unfamiliar ways
they came down like rain things in myself i couldn't change but if we coulda chilled and waited a while then may now (?)
the shooting stars won't send us running from each other
from ourselves

and when you got me open you faked on me
why'd you tell me that you love me and then stray away
what you did that day i promise i would never go waiting for someone who couldn't ever change

<chorus>

<verse 3>
but you can't get something for nothing so what was mine sifted through like lost time and unclaimed sand in a desert wind with half my heart i took you in so i can let you go

<chorus>
