

Good Clean Fun, Who Shares Wins

As kids we're told to always play fair
Smile at your neighbor
And share, share, share
In later years we're taught
To try and be the best
Look out for yourself, and fuck all the rest
Well, I would say in many ways
We learned much more in younger days. the obvious things were all so plain to see
Like two for you and two for me
If there are only four I don't need three That's just how the world should be

You must remember the way
When things are up in the air
It's like the word of the day
And today's word is fair
If you've got two kidneys
It means you have one to spare
Because the people who win
Are the people who share

The scene is like a playground
From back in the day
Jump, swing, scream, yell, play, play, play
Pick you up if you fall down
And you'll do the same
Look out for each other
It's the name of the game
Go to shows, trust your friends
And the fun just never ends
The obvious things are so plain to see
Like two for you and two for me
If there are only four
I don't need three

If I want to make cookies
And you have the tins
Then we'll eat together
Because who shares wins

If I have the ball
And you have the pins
Then we'll bowl together
Because who shares wins

If I have the helmets
And you have the Schwinn
Then we'll bike together
Because who shares wins

If I'm down with straightedge
And you're down with skins
Then we'll mosh together
