

Good Riddance, Boys And Girls

i remember when you disconnected with such high hopes but still rejected i know i've been there you thought something outside would always fix you you should know by now it'll always trick you i know how it feels it was all just boys and girls making the most of a fucked up world left with nothing left insane live fast, die young, feel no pain why can't you open those eyes wasted living your daydream dies you've disconnected from all that you know why?

mom and dad let you out at night if you're back by one it'll be all right and you're safe now safe from the world but those nights won't stay the same there's no more time for fun and games and your habits are all wearing you down