

Good Riddance, October

i woke up screaming just the other night awakened by another dream

i thought back to '80 thinking what would've happened if everything wasn't how it seemed ten years the lie survives fucking with american lives reduced to pawns in a power play too long they've suffered not for america

just for a lead on election day

my october my america
running out of time

my october my america
read between the lines