

Graham Parker, Beating Of Another Heart

She comes from the hardest town they build you up to let you down and leave you with an armour hard as steel

It's not the chaos or the heat or the noises from the street but something inside she has to beat that shoots out a nerve causes judgements to swerve and makes her feel that something must be wrong

She'll attempt to resist and pretend it don't exist when it does

But if ever her defence drop love takes a shot pop Baby you can't stop

the beating of another heart the beating of another heart yeah sometimes she needs the beating of another heart

All the steps we seem to take are sometimes stairways to escape from all the things that were supposed to come

And there's a threat when letting go Showing things she'll never show but I won't give in now I know as I ask friend how on earth can I send a little bit of me to her She'll attempt to resist and pretend I don't exist when I do

But if ever her defence drop
love takes a shot pop
Baby you can't stop

the beating of another heart yeah
sometimes she needs the beating of another heart

The pounding goes on forever at night when we are here together They say that people get too clever for love but I know

But if ever her defence drop
love takes a shot pop
Baby you can't stop

the beating of another heart yeah
sometimes she needs the beating of another heart she needs the beating of another heart
she needs the beating of another heart
