

Grant Hart, You Don't Have To Tell Me Now

You don't have to tell me now
You don't have to tell me now
You don't have to spoil the moment
Because I think I already know

You don't have to kiss me now
You don't have to kiss me now
It's only an empty gesture
And I think I already know

Sadly
Lack of understanding
Hopelessly demanding
Believe it or not I couldn't go pretending
It's a happy ending
Don't you know that honesty it means forever
Honesty it means all the time

You don't have to hold me now
You don't have to hold me up
For inspection
Well I can see my own reflection
And I think I already know

You don't have to change me now
You don't have to change me now
Change my manner
You have to take it or leave it
And I think I already know

Look at all the time we've wasted
Written and erased it
I try not to think about
All of the notions
We put into motion
Don't you know that honesty it means to each other
Honesty it means to ourselves

You don't have to tell me now
You don't have to tell me now
You don't have to spoil the moment
Because I think I already know
