

Gravity Kills, Drown

I feel your reflection
But you're a stranger to me
I saw you staring back now
Your shadow right next to me
Can you be, my enemy, my disease
Looking through, what's left of you to hold on to
Drowning, hold my head down under
Waiting, you touch but you can't feel
You want to break my silence
You know you have too much to lose
You think that you're so holy
You think you're breaking me in two
Cover me in misery, in anything
I'm still here, you're still here, am I still here?
Drowning, hold my head down under
Waiting, you touch but you can't feel
Drown in silence, in my violence
Drown in silence, things are better left undone
Can you be, my enemy, my disease
Looking through what's left of you to hold on to
Drowning, hold my head down under
Waiting, you touch what you can't feel