

Great White, Ain't No Shame

(Michael Lardie, Jack Russell, Don Dokken, Jack Blades)

Ain't no line, ain't no lyin' to love
Ain't no crime, Lord there ain't no cryin' to love
Yeah to love
Well you say you're sick and tired of being lonely
And you say you've had enough of sympathy
And you find there's no one there to share your midnights
Well that just ain't the way it ought to be
And it ain't no shame
Ain't no shame to be loved
And you better believe it, 'cause when you're there
There's nothing else you'd ever want to do
Ain't no shame to be loved, can't you hear me
Look inside your heart'll tell you true
All my love belongs to you
To walk the path, the path of life alone - so alone
A single light in an empty sky - so alone
When it seems there's no one there to lend a shoulder
And your nights are cold and filled with misery
Well it's time you took a look a little closer
'Cause that's just ain't the way it ought to be
No - ain't no shame
Well you say you're sick and tired of being lonely
And your nights are cold and filled with misery
Well it's time you took a look a little closer - a little closer
'Cause that's just ain't the way it ought to be
No - ain't no shame
Ain't no shame to be loved
And you'd better believe it cause when you're there
There's nothing else you'd ever want to do
Ain't no shame to be loved
All my love belongs to you
Aint no shame to be loved
Aint no shame to be loved
