

Greg Graffin, One More Hill

Rich man, poor man, beggar or thief, no matter which one in this life you lead

If you think you've reached the top of the world just look all around and you'll see

There's one more hill, just one more hill, there's always a hill left to climb

If you think you've reached the top of the world the hill of judgement is still left to climb

There's a hill that we build everyday that you live, the deeds that we do here below

And tomorrow comes when you reach up above, you may climb that mountain and reach heaven's

There's one more hill, just one more hill, there's always a hill left to climb

If you think you've reached the top of the world the hill of judgement is still left to climb

Thanks to saganrenolds for adding these lyrics