

Hangnail, An Apology

It's hard to take the blame
But sometimes credit's due
It's easier to rearrange
What's wrong from what is true
The focus is not on you
What part could I have had
I'm sorry if I messed things up
I wasn't meaning to

And I realize now it doesn't matter how
I'm responsible for my actions
And yours are up to you
And I realize now I can't be the judge
If I only see the wrong you've done
Then the wrong should be on me

The circumstantial disagreements
That we face
Are better when the truth about times
Doesn't get misplaced
My senseless rational kicks in
And takes control
The words I spoke are said and done they're Meaningless the same