

Hangnail, Don't Look Back

Self absorption sets in
With a wavering step we make headway on covering lies
We often pretend that the burden is light yet we struggle to move ahead

Don't ever look back on where you've been It's where your going to fall in Don't wait for the moment still to come
The here and now has just begun

Every word that's been said,
It's overwhelming the cost and effective in wearing us thin
It gets to you head, the frustration incurred by addition to rising walls