

Hank Locklin, If Loving You Means Anything

I don't blame you for not trusting me just yet
Someone's hurt you and you're not willing to forget
Something's happened in the past that I can never change
But I love you if just loving you means anything
What's happened in the past that makes you so afraid
Will you judge the world by only one mistake you've made
Will you ever walk in sunlight that only love can bring
Yes I love you if just loving you means anything
I can't offer a bed of roses I only hope you know
That wherever you find roses thorns are also bound to grow
I'm just saying that my love for you won't ever change
And I love you if just loving you means anything
Yes I love you if just loving you means anything