Hank Locklin, Who Can I Count On

Who can I count on if I can't count on you I never counted on you makin' me blue

They say you're running round with somebody new Who can I count on if I can't count on you

I thought I held the precious key to heaven

Your love was sweet and gentle at the start

But now I feel that I can't go on living if living means that we must live apart

Who can I count on if I can't count on you

There goes my happiness and here comes the blues

I can't convince myself that we're really through

Who can I count on if I can't count on you

piano

The door to happiness was almost opened just one more step or two and I'd be in

And all at once the vows you made were broken

The door to happiness was closed again

Who can I count on...
