

Hank Locklin, Wishing It Was You

Tomorrow when I'm walking down the isle I'll try to hide my heartache with a smile
Cause when I look at her and say I do in my heart I'll be wishing it was you
Tomorrow when you'll see me passing by turn your head so you won't see me cry
And just remember when I'll say I do in my heart I'll be wishing it was you
(You listened when they said I cheated you listened when they said I lied)
Yes you listened to all other stories but you didn't listen to my side
So tomorrow when the chapel bells begin I'll have to think of you as just a friend
But when I'll say those precious words I do in my heart I'll be wishing it was you
In my heart I'll be wishing it was you
