

Hank Snow, Call Of The Wild

So the bright lights beckon you again
And took you back and fill your life with sin
I knew they'd never really set you free
I knew again you'd soon be leaving me

Yes I was waiting for the call of wild
Knowing I'd be crying like a child
Knowing you were mine for just a while
Tell again you've heard the call of the wild

Tempting calls were just as strong for you
You couldn't leave the things you used to do
Though you gave all your love I couldn't win
The wild life has called you back again
Yes I was waiting for...
