Hank Williams Sr., 5 Shots Of Whiskey

Livin alone, singin my songs Thinkin bout the good times when you were my own Lady you taught me how to hurt and cry, and each day I'm not with you I die more inside Honey sweet lady why did you go? and leave me here dying all alone in my world? It's all gone wrong since you've been gone So give me 5 shots of whiskey to help kill the misery and pain you put me through Thanks for the good times, for they were the best of my life I spent with you Now what can I do? Walkin' on Broadway not havin a care I see you and your new guy who's strokin' your hair And I can't keep staying here in my hometown, got to get on with my life somehow It's all gone wrong since you've been gone So give me 5 shots of whiskey to help kill the misery and pain you put me through Thanks for the good times, for they were the best of my life I spent with you and I still love you
