

Hans York, Lifes Apart

(Hans York/ Phil Cohen)

The falling leaves whisper of love that's dying, still my mind is telling me to keep on trying.
And I continue denying what I know to be true,
My world seems so empty without the love I had for you.

Nothing is your fault, it's simple cause and effect.
Cuts don't always mend, after so much neglect.
And I continue to reject the feelings that I knew,
My world seems so empty without the love I had for you.

Lives apart

You gave me your reason about words said in anger,
You can't take them back when they are already out there.
And I continue on even though I know to be true,
My world seems so empty without the love I had for you.

Lives apart

Can a friendship survive as our love slips away?
While the hurt lessens just a little bit each day.
And I continue to pay for the feelings that I knew,
My world seems so empty without the love I had for you.

Lives apart