

Harlan Howard, I Run To The Door

Everytime a bell rings everytime a bird sings I run to the door
Everytime the wind blows even though my heart knows I run to the door
Everyday is lonely and my mem'ries only make me want to more
When somebody goes by actin' like a fool I run to the door
Memories that never die all alone I sit and cry
When I see the sunrise everytime my heart cries I run to the door
Early in the twilight even at the midnight I run to the door
Though you didn't want me memories are haunt me yes I walk the door
When somebody goes by actin' like a fool I run to the door
Memories that never die all alone I sit and cry
When I hear my heartcall when I hear a tearfall I run to the door
Wishin' I could see you wishin' it could be you there at the door
Though you didn't want me memories are haunt me yes I walk the door
When somebody goes by actin' like a fool I run to the door
Memories that never die all alone I sit and cry
