

Harlan Howard, Wrong Company

WRONG COMPANY
Writer Harlan Howard

I've lost the only love I've ever known
Too many nights I left her all alone
I said forgive me, one too many times
And now her parting words my mind
You're with the Wrong Company they'll drag you down
You're spending too much time on the wrong side of town
Now it's your life to live, but it's my heart to give
And if you still want me, give up that wrong company
She warned me but I've wasted my last chance
And now she's gone without a backward glance
Oh how I miss the love I threw away
Every song on that jukebox seems to say
