Hayley Taylor, No more wishing

Wake up I'm trying to show you I wanna come clean you mean more than you should mean but I'm willing to be the one that you put on a pedestal the one that you see in your dreams the one that you hide your true self from the one you want to please And I know that it's wrong to want something so false and so fake it's not that I want to fix you I just want to get my way cause you're the one that I put on a pedestal the one who keeps coming back to me the one that I gave my whole heart to the one who makes me believe I want a love that's side by side I want a love that holds me tight I want a love that feels like a dream but when I wake up, he's still there with me so put me up on a pedestal give me everything I need but give it to me so completely that there will be no more wishing no more wishing no more wishing no more wishing