

Heaven & Hell, Fear

If you're never Heard before
There was once a time
When only God had fire
The moon and stars and nothing more
To lead you through the night
If there's a Hell and Satan had a daughter
He must have sent her here to hide the flame
We're still afraid
Must be he taught her so well
We've seen some light
So why's it all the same
Superstition - go away
We wear the mark
Fear
There's a corner of the mind
With a door that always
Opens up at sundown
And what's inside is to remind you
To hide from eyes that shine
We ran until we found we had the power
Illuminate the world and make it burn
We're still afraid
Must be that door in your brain
You've seen some light
And you pray it will return
Superstition go away
We wear the mark
Fear
If there's a Hell and Satan sent his daughter
She must have gotten lost
And can't go home
We're still afraid
And he can't find her again
We've seen some light
But it will always be the same
Evolution go away
We still share the mark
Fear
