

Helltrain, Ghouls

an everlasting night and angels out of sight the soulless are gathered for a feast chains can be heard dragged on the street no one dares to go out this is the city god forgot to save the place where the sun never shines sins are on the menu for eternal time for those already damned ghouls plunder graves tonight the grim reaper's thirsty for human life a whispering fog lies thick on the ground embracing the life of those who sin if you dare to go out and walk among the dead thirsty for people of the light the sound of howling wolves echoes through the night waking up the ghosts of the cursed reflections of what's waiting on the other side of life a mirror of a void filled with dirt