Henry Moodie, right person, wrong time i heard that you're back in town for the holidays at your parents house the last time that we spoke, was 3 years ago but sometimes i still think about sneaking out the window when we were more than friends what if one day we start again? i don't know why but i still believe in you & i (you & i)

and i don't know how

but i hope that one day you'll come back around (back around) and you'll say

every road i ever i take leads to you it's all the same you're the one that got away

i don't know why

but i still believe our stars will align

i'm just the right person wrong time sometimes when i close my eyes i picture us in 20 years time where it all worked out, we bought a house and settled down i know we could do it if we tried tried to grow a little wiser learn from our mistakes

i can't help but wanna say

i don't know why

but i still believe in you & i (you & i)

and i don't know how

but i hope that one day you'll come back around (back around) and you'll say

every road i ever i take leads back to you it's all the same

you're the one that got away

i don't know why

but i still believe our stars will align

i'm just the right person wrong time

london late nights weekends strobe lights ohh i miss those memories, good times london city

late nights tipsy

all these memories never leave me

my friends your place young dumb mistakes all these memories i wish we'd still make