Hey Monday, Fall Into Me

I was looking through the chair You were looking through the mirror Never met eyes No, I've never seen clearer than now There's no way out

I'm tingling in places I didn't know existed How are things right and also twisted? How can we work this out?

Somehow everything in me is changing In the most amazing kind of way

Every single breath you take away Gives me more life than before We could be the perfect masterpiece Baby, bring me in And fall into me

Whenever you are near I feel like we could do anything And I think we should now We'll take the town

Your eyes tell me something Afraid to misread But if I'm wrong What if you mislead me? Still, it's worth the thrill

Somehow everything in me is aching Just to hear your gentle voice again

Every single breath you take away Gives me more life than before We could be the perfect masterpiece Baby, bring me in

Things aren't simple anymore Can't jump in until you know But I think that I just might Close my eyes and hold on tight

To every single breath To every single breath

Every single breath you take away Gives me more life than before We could be the perfect masterpiece Baby, bring me in

Every single breath you take away Gives me more life than before We could be the perfect masterpiece Baby, bring me in Bring me in and fall into me