Hit The Lights, Sincerely Yours

So wake up, and let go Of these feelings that I've had for you It's easier said than done So give up, and let go Of these feelings that I've had for you Why couldn't you be one?

But it's a guilty pleasure Deciding whether you were ever mine or not But it's just apparent That you weren't ever mine to start

What will it take to make you Understand that I... I'm not lying when I say I need you What will it take to make you Understand that I... I'm not lying when I say I need you

So don't close your eyes

Every night I catch you up I never once heard you say stop But right I wish I had I wish I had the nerve to tell you that I'm a wreck But what really did you expect You never listened to what I said to you

But it's a guilty pleasure Deciding whether you were ever mine or not But it's just apparent That you weren't ever mine to start

What will it take to make you Understand that I... I'm not lying when I say I need you What will it take to make you Understand that I... I'm not lying when I say I need you

But now this broken soul of a boy Falls in pieces with no choice At the sound of her voice He falls apart But now this broken soul of a boy Falls in pieces with no choice At the sound of her voice He falls apart, he falls apart, he falls apart

What will it take to make you Understand that I... I'm not lying when I say I need you What will it take to make you Understand that I... I'm not lying when I say I need you