

Holly Conlan, You are goodbye

I remember here.
I remember you and me.
I remember wild and wild and free.
I remember "stay";
I remember "please don't ever leave";
I remember you made me believe
That tomorrow and today, the sun would hold our hands
But the night came into stay while you made other plans.
I remember time.
I remember days slid into year,
Building lifetimes thinking you'd be here.
But tomorrow and today, well they misunderstood.
And you went along your way
I think you're gone for good.
You are the sun gone down.
You are the sky.
You are the moon rushed 'round.
You are goodbye.
You are good, goodbye.
La-da-da-ah
La-da-da-ah
I remember "go";
And I remember one "Maybe you could wait";
I remember arms reached out too late.
'Cuz tomorrow and today are only here so long.
When there's nothing left to say,
I hear that life moves on.
You are the sun gone down.
You are the sky.
You are the moon rushed 'round.
You are goodbye.
You are good, good.
You are goodbye.
You are good, goodbye.
La-da-da-ah
La-da-da-ah
La-da-da-da-da
