

Hootie & The Blowfish, I'll Come Runnin'

It's been such a long time since I haven't seen your face.
There's a tear on your cheek
where your smile used to be 'cause I'm going away.
We had such a good time,
though we knew this day might come.
So when you hold me tonight, squeeze a little tighter
'cause in the morning, I'll be gone.
And, I tell you, baby, now, I might be long.
But, I'll come runnin'.
I'll come runnin' home.
I'll come runnin' home to you.
I'll come runnin' (I'll come runnin').
I'll come runnin' home (I'll come).
I'll come runnin' home to you.
It's already 5 AM.
We haven't got much sleep just yet.
Sun is rising.
I wish I could make time stand still.
I look in your eyes, now, love and I don't know what to say.
The words, the words.
And if you say you'll wait me for me, now, I know you'll try.
But, I'll come runnin'.
I'll come runnin' home.
I'll come runnin' home to you, you.
I will come runnin' home (I'll come runnin').
I'll never leave you alone, girl (I'll come).
I'll always come runnin' home to you. You.
I (I'll come runnin') (I'll come)
I will, I will, I will,
I will come home and I'll always come home right to you.
(I'll come runnin')
No matter what I did, no matter what I do. (I'll come)
I'll always. I'll always come runnin' home.
I'll always come runnin' home to you.
I'll come runnin'. I'll come. I'll come runnin'. I'll come.
