Hootie & The Blowfish, I'm Over You

(The Silos)

The stars are shining brighter than the night that I remember My thoughts are like a river Réflecting in all directions I'm gonna phone her, but not today I'm gonna write her, but not today Today I'm gonna be Driving down Highway 441 with the windows down A beer in one hand, the radio blasting My old needs I won't recognize I'm Over You Hold on to the evening, hold on to the morn All night long, sunshine hiding underneath and I'm gonna phone her, but not today I'm gonna write her, but not today Today I'm gonna be Driving down Highway 441 with the windows down A beer in one hand, the radio blasting My old needs I won't recognize I'm Over You Miles of country road rise, rise away The cars are by the river Clouds are in the coffee shops around here
