Hootie & The Blowfish, Only Lonely

Only Lonely by Hootie & amp; The Blowfish

Hello again, your words they make me smile
As I drift away in my little room upstairs
Oh I spend my nights imagining your face, your touch
Then I realise how I don't even know your name
If we could share our time would I disappoint your fantasies?
but I belive that I could be the one you're needing 'Cause I'm only lonely on the inside
Didn't mean to take away your dreams
I'm only lonely on the inside
When you close your eyes to your deepest thoughts

And I could start to give apologies
For all the stupid things that I will say and I will do
If we should ever cross the same place at the same time
Would your world skip a beat cause it was me?
If we could share our life
Would I disappoint your memories?
And I believe that you could be the one I'm needing
And I'm only lonely on the inside
Didn't mean to take away your dreams
Only lonely on the inside
When you close your eyes to your deepest thoughts

If I could give back your hopes, your joys, your treasures Don't you think that I would change my world But there's so many things trying to pull us together That even though we're far apart, I can still watch you walk away So much I gotta say Only lonely on the inside, I'm only lonely on the inside When you close your eyes what do you see? I'm only lonely on the inside Didn't mean to take away your dreams I'm only lonely on the inside In your deepest thoughts, what do you see? Only lonely on the inside I didn't mean, I didn't mean to steal your dreams away Only lonely on the inside When you close your eyes, in your deepest thoughts, do you see me? Only lonely on the inside I'm only lonely when you're gone Only lonely on the inside I see, I see Only lonely on the inside I'm only lonely, I'm only lonely on the inside Only lonely on the inside