

Hooverphonic, You Hurt Me (But I've Got So Much

I must have been blind adoring the blues
In everything lies a small kind of truth
But than again,
Just when I thought you were staying for good
You left for no reason is that all you could
You're still a man

It's not what I want
It's not what I need
Nothing but lies and way too much heat
Just when I thought you were telling the truth
I caught you with here oh you fool

You hurt me when I've got so much more to give

We live in denial adoring what's new
In everything lies a small kind of blues
But than again,
Just when I thought you were leaving for good
You stayed for no reason although we were through
You're still a man

It's not what I want
It's not what I need
Nothing but lies and way too much heat
Just when I thought you were telling the truth
I caught you with here oh you fool

You hurt me when I've got so much more to give