Howard Jones, Show Me

We got the same beat runnin' round through this crazy town Oh I'm sick and I can't hear it anymore And when we touched as the blood and the rain We'd be shakin' the ground She's sick and there's a way to bring her 'round

Show me what you're waitin' for This moment may not rise again And your heart will never know Show me what you're waitin' for The voices may not rise again And the world will never know

The party drags us over the edge to a poison shore I can't carry this desire anymore Across the blue sky callin' me with the sweetest demand She talks to me of mercy make me understand

Show me what you're waitin' for This moment may not rise again And your heart will never know Show me what you're waitin' for The voices may not rise again And the world will never know

And through these years As the tears chase the rain The picture has cleared Can we face the change

Show me what you're waitin' for The voices may not rise again And the world will never know Show me what you're waitin' for This moment may not rise again And your heart will never know
