

Hugh Cornwell, Land Of A Thousand Kisses

When I'm asked how the world is treating me
I say I get tired on the wheel
In the land of a thousand kisses
I get dizzy with the mood swings that you feel

When I'm asked if I know of a way out of here
When everyday sees a change of heart
In the land of a thousand kisses
I get hungry like I did at the start

So take my hand if you're ready
For a journey to the coast of light
In the land of a thousand kisses
If you're ready we could stay all night
When I'm asked if I have dreams unfulfilled
I say I don't understand dreams at all
In the land of a thousand kisses
I can drift to the waterfall

So take my hand if you're ready
For a journey to the coast of light
In the land of a thousand kisses
If you're ready we can stay all night

As we lay in our fear to communicate
You say I should ask you once again
In the land of a thousand kisses
There's no questions and no answers and no pain
