

Hyde, SEASON'S CALL

How many cuts should I repeat?
How many fates should I accept?
Does it have an end?

Because I always feel you in me.

How many cuts should I repeat?
How many fates should I accept?
Does it have an end?

Because I always feel you in me.
You taught me how to love.
I feel. I can do anything.

My beloved season calls me.
Because I always feel you in me.

</lyrics>

I'm against to the tangling wind
I am looking for the lost season
Slightly but my way aims towards your eyes
pushed by a shining memory
How many cuts should I repeat?
How many fates should I accept?

Does it have an end?
You always coursing through all my body
So I won't have fear, Even tomorrow
Because I always feel you in me.

The good of you crossing my dry throat
Dampens to my heart
How many cuts should I repeat?
How many fates should I accept?
Does it have an end?
Far away the aspect of that bird
That it would go away jumping towards the sky
Always informs me about a huge love
Because I always feel you in me.
You taught me how to love. I feel.
I can do anything.

I'd like to expand the world that you draw in a dream ahead your eyes
So I won't have fear, Even tomorrow
My beloved season calls me.
Because I always feel you in me.
