Ian Moore, Caroline

And then the rains they came From thick and broken clouds And washed out all the names Of tired little towns Summer's gone away Just the California coast Hey, I don't mind I never saw around much anyway

But I cannot be still
And it's coarsing through my veins
Songs that never live
The songs that stay the same
And it turned around at you
And it knocked you off your feet
Yeah the world was on your back
And you woudn't carry that weight

[chorus]
O' and Caroline you should Captured their hearts while you still could
You just threw it all away
Did you really think that you'd live forever, Caroline?

And one by one they fell
Clinging to their names
Technology overflowing
And it's flowing from their brains nobody knew the words
nobody knew to sing
nobody had the time to talk about it anyway

[chorus]

They all just sold you down the line And you're looking for forgivness Every time you shut your eyes But you're faded and old and they'll never love you

[chorus]
