

Icehouse, Break These Chains

Tell me, where are you now now you know the way it feels it was always easy for you you've never been so down before I saw you turning to go I saw you walk away from me but I don't have to play your game I never did belong in here I don't hear you anymore you listen to me, now I'm standing on the outside watching it all come down on you I've got to break these chains no, you never could hold me down
I've got to break these chains
It doesn't matter to me now I can leave it all behind well, its the anger in me you put the anger in me and I remember a time it's not so long ago I was always on the other side and I knew there must be more hearing all your empty words, your promises but now, I'm standing on the outside
watching it all come down on you
I've got to break these chains no,
you never could hold me down
I've got to break these chains
