

Imperative Reaction, Never Ending

It was a moment of clarity
We lost in the cold
In the landslide that buried
A part of my soul
I'm leaving behind
What was already there
Just a fictional time
I can no longer bear

And when the days turn into years
Please promise me that what we were
Will always remain
Beyond the fading touch of time
A never ending line to guide us home
If we should lose our way

In just a moment sincerity
Gave way to the cold
In the season that withered
A part of my soul
We're saying goodbye
To what was never there
Just a fictional time
That no longer cares
