

Jack Russell, The Fault's All Mine

a picture can inspire a thousand words if i could paint your thoughts of me you'd see a different world i pray i'll find a way to turn back time to another day when i could say that you were mine all mine you broke my heart girl and it's on my mind more than any other girl because this time the fault's all mine and how many times must i make amends for all those times when you thought the pain would never mend? well the last time i saw your loving smile i wish i had a camera to catch you by surprise i offended you my love but you denied your empty eyes the final compromise of our love
you broke my heart girl
and it's on my mind more than any other girl
because this time the fault's all mine
and how many times must i make amends
for all those times when you thought the pain would never mend?
the fault's all mine
and how many times must i make amends for all those times when you shed a tear that i could never mend?
oh no no no