

Jack's Broken Heart, Change Over

Passing through these blurred crowds fast paced world without sound too busy with their profound days to see the right that's found me pity the shallow, shut out what's hollow because depth never felt so amazing because you can't see through my eyes I won't break my only ties to what's right what makes me feel that I'm alive

I'm lost in these skies have reasons to try never want to back track because now I'm alive

I can't paint this picture for you you'll never see in my shade of blue when you're blind colours are meaningless and that's fine for you.
