

Jack White, If I Die Tomorrow

if i die tomorrow could you find it in your heart to sing if my mother cries in sorrow will you help her with the many things that she needs from time to time and day to day so if i die tomorrow will you know exactly what to say today she won't mind the trouble she's been through it all before i know she'll say make it a double of her lemon drink and before you know she'll be laughing bout the times and those old days
so if i die tomorrow
promise you can walk away okay, okay? i hate to think about it so it helps to shout it and if you could help me out it would mean so much for my piece of mind and her heart is careworn and ever since i was a newborn i pushed aside this worry for the sake of my life if i die tomorrow will you let me know i left in peace i begged and borrowed everybody's love and they gave for free and i wish that i could give it back to them
so if i die tomorrow
will you give them all the love they lent to me
