

Jackie Greene, Falling Back

The stars came out of disguise and the rain was hidden by the tears in your eyes and falling back is hard to do when its falling back in love with you you know the lamp post understands that you cannot look inside a man but falling back is hard to do when its falling back in love with you

I dont mind your wishing games long as I can keep from feeling blue your mamas rich, I can tell by the way she walks and I dont care about anything but you so put your coat on, step outside the cars gassed up for a midnight ride

and falling back is hard to do
when its falling back in love with you so Ill light another cigarette and watch you as you tumble in your sleep Ive known you forever, but it feels like we just met and look here, my heart is yours to keep the stars came out of disguise

and the rain was hidden by the tears in your eyes
and falling back is hard to do
when its falling back in love with you