

Jackie Lomax, By The Window

If you change your mind you'll find him by the window
I know he wasn't lying when he said these words to me now

Oh my woman she has left me and gone away with another man
Though I told her how I loved her, she didn't try to understand
She just turned her head and she walked on out the door
And from my eyes, the tears like rain they did pour

No matter what you did he loves you more each day
Cause then he said he'll take you back anyway

Cause since she's left my side, I've prayed for her return
For what she did with him, I'll show no concern
So if she's not afraid, she can come on back here to stay
I'll be waiting by the window, just to pass the time away

So if you change your mind you'll find him by the window
I know he wasn't lying when he said these words to me now

There all alone by the window
There all alone by the window
There all alone by the window