Jackson United, Black Regrets

so sick of lying about it but can't live without it keeps up the pulse in my veins now heart in mouth it just keeps on beating it's stuck on repeating the way that your name sounds

I don't want nothing to do with me but i'm acting alone again and your lament "you can't repent for the sins of another" the wedding dress the black regrets will do nothing but smother us you push when i push back you should feel like you act you should pause for moment together breathe it in til you choke every lie in your throat every stick in the spokes sends you over now when your planes are all crashing down on a long distance lover and your lament

"you can't repent
for the sins of another"
the wedding dress
the black regrets
will do nothing but smother
and your lament
"you can't repent
for the sins of another"
the wedding dress
the black regrets
will do nothing but smother us now you're waiting alone at the back of the room try not to wonder why when you called out his name only nothing remains try not to wonder why feels so good and it's true such a simple fuck you feels so good and it's true it's the worst we could do

and your lament "you can't repent for the sins of another" the wedding dress the black regrets will do nothing but smother and your lament "you can't repent for the sins of another" the wedding dress the black regrets

will do nothing but smother us